New Constitution Being Written

By Ralph Johnson

A New Student Government Association Constitution is currently being written by a committee of Student Government officers with input from the Dean and Associate Dean of Students, Dr. Vail and Dr. Littlejohn. The new Constitution is patterned after the United States Constitution to provide it with flexibility and stability.

In an extensive interview with Dale Dove, Vice-President of SGA, he stated that for years the SGA has been working under a piecemealed, sloppily amended Constitution. An example of this is the section dealing with the SGA Attorney General. In one section it states that the Attorney General shall be elected, yet in another section it says the Attorney General shall be appointed.

Under the present Constitution there are now approximately twenty elected officers. The new proposed constitution would do away with this. Under the proposed Constitution, there would be three campus wide elected officers: The President, Vice-President and Attorney General of SGA. All other officers with the exception of the Senate will be appointed. The appointment will be similar to what is currently practiced by the United States Government. The President will make suggestions in collaboration with the Executive Board (Vice-President and Attorney General) as to who shall fill certain posts. Those appointed will then be interviewed by the Executive Board and, if they meet with the approval of the Board, they will then have to be approved and confirmed by the senate. This provides the systems of checks and balances between the Executive and the Legislative branches of Student Government. This system of appointments will cover such offices as the Judicial Board, Public Defender, Public Prosecutor and certain other officers of SGA.

According to Vice-President Dove, the new Constitution will give more power to the people. Instead of class senators and Dorm senators there will be one type of senator. The senate will be composed of senators who will be elected from their Dorm District. Each residence Dorm will be considered a District and for every one hundred residents in that District, there will be one senator. For example: If Phelps District (the entire population of Phelps Dorm) has 450 residents, then it will be allotted four senators. If Thomson District has 456 residents, they will be allotted five senators. Also, day students will have a greater voice in SGA under the proposed Constitution. For every one hundred day students, they also will be allotted one senator. Roddy and Breazale apartments would also be under the new plan.

The new proposed constitution also makes students equal under the law. In other words, no matter how many hours a student is taking, he is still eligible to run for Student Government Office. This runs counter to the old constitution which requires a minimum exception of the Senate officers: The minimum of 12 hours before a student can run for an office. Dove also stated that the new Constitution will provide for better representation of the student body. Currently, Blacks and day students are poorly represented in Senate. This, Dove stated, will more than likely change with approval of the new Constitution. The new proposed Constitution will have to be approved by the student body in a campus wide referendum which is scheduled to be held in the near future.

Vice-President Dove stated that every student has to realize that the best way to get something done or changed is to go through the Student Government Association. Dove also stated that students should realize that the Administration recognizes the SGA and has high regard for their opinions.

Note - The SGA and Dinkins Program Board will be sponsoring a "Get Involved in Winthrop Day" to be held on Thursday, September 15, 1977 at 7:30. It is planned to give new and old students at Winthrop an idea of the different clubs and organizations that are here. Leaders and Advisors will be on hand to answer questions that any students have about any of the clubs and organizations on Campus.

Know Your Judicial Rights

By Becky Ferguson

The Judicial Council of Winthrop College Student Government is a very important branch of the Judiciary and one which students need to be informed of.

It is the Judicial Council before whom students go when they violate various rules and regulations of the Winthrop Campus. The violations for which one can be fined fall into three broad categories—those under the General Conduct Policy, violations of the Residence Hall Contract, and violations of regulations in the areas reserved to the Administration by the Board of Trustees.

The Judicial Council is composed of a chairman, Mr. Donald Aplin, two elected faculty members, Caroline Tutwiler and Roy Flynn, and two elected student members, Holly Bland and Christine Sherman. The Judicial Council reports directly to the administration through the Vice President of Student Affairs, and then to the President of Trustees, if necessary.

All violators of the conduct policy, Residence Hall Contract, or other rules adopted by the Trustees will appear before the Council. If the accused pleads guilty of the offense, then he/she may request a hearing before the Vice President of Student Affairs.

When a violation occurs, the offender will be served with a written account of the charges within 72 hours of the offense. The student will then be notified of the time and place of the hearing. The written notice that the student is served with will contain seven specifics: the specific rule or regulation violated; the date of the offense; the possible penalties for the offense; the right to have witnesses and other evidence; the right to question witnesses against him/her; the right to have as counsel the Public Defender or another student, (no outside lawyer may be brought in); and finally, if found guilty, the right to a duplicate tape of the proceedings, (all Council hearings are taped and kept for 1-2 years.)

Although the Judicial Council sounds very much like a trial situation, it must be stressed that it is NOT. The Council is merely a hearing that tries to discern the truth about the situation. As such, students who are accused of a violation retain certain rights. The right to review the charges; the right to a closed hearing, (all hearings are otherwise open to the public.); the right to innocence before proven guilty; the right to testify or refuse to testify; the right to question witnesses; the right to appeal the verdict if found guilty, to the President of the College; the right to appeal to the President of the Board of Trustees—all of these rights and more are available to the student who chooses to take advantage of them.

It is important to note that the student has many options open to him/her: to plead guilty or innocent, have an open or closed hearing, and to appeal the verdict if some indication is given that something went awry during the hearing.

After the Judicial Council has heard the case, and if the verdict is guilty, then three punishments may be administered. The first of these is a letter of reprimand, which is sent to the student. This letter usually warns the offender against letting his "crime" happen again. The second, and most common is to be put on probation for a certain period of time. This length of time is set by the Council and varies, according to the offense. If the offender is again charged with a violation while on probation, then suspension or expulsion may occur. The third and perhaps most serious punishment is to be suspended from Winthrop for a definite period of time, either a semester, year, or perhaps more. Suspension and probation are widely used for serious offenses.

If the "crime" is of an extremely serious nature, then expulsion may occur for the student. If this does happen, the student may never return to Winthrop College again.

Webb Named Distinguished Professor

Dr. Ross A. Webb, professor of history at Winthrop College, has been named the school's Distinguished Professor for 1977.

Dr. Ross Webb

Dr. Charles B. Vail, president of Winthrop, presented the citation at a faculty meeting on April 26. The citation carries a $500 cash award from the Winthrop Alumni Association and release time for research.

Citing an outstanding record as a scholar and teacher, Dr. Webb is the 17th faculty member to receive the Distinguished Professor Award. Selection for this distinguished honor is made by a joint student-faculty committee.

Dr. Vail called Webb a concerned, knowledgeable, and effective teacher. "Dr. Webb has a compassionate interest in the welfare of individuals," Vail said.

A native of Westchester, Nova Scotia, Canada, Dr. Webb came to Winthrop in June, 1967 to serve as chairman of the history department. He was named dean of the faculty in 1968 and vice president for academic affairs in 1972.

Webb has since returned to full time teaching, and has worked hard and successfully to update his knowledge of subject matter and to develop new techniques to communicate that knowledge effectively.

Dr. Webb earned his A.B. degree at Acadia University and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Pittsburgh. Webb has served as an associate professor and director of undergraduate studies in history at the University of Kentucky, and while there received an award for teaching effectiveness.

Webb has written three books, A BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE, THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY DISPUTE, 1779-1903, and BENJAMIN HELM BRISTOW: BORDER STATE POLITICIAN, and contributed to a fourth. The University of Kentucky Press has announced plans to publish another manuscript by Webb this spring.

Webb has just returned from England, after doing extensive research for a new book.

Budget Cuts Too Far

While enrollment and tuition increased for this semester, vital services are, or have already, decreased their operations. Every office at Winthrop is attempting, in one way or another, to cope with the budget crunch. Eventually, the budgeting problems reach the student body in the disguised forms of higher tuition fees, overcrowded classrooms — not enough faculty members, and limited window service at the post office. The list goes on.

The whys and wherefores of these problems are extremely intricate, even though their effects are apparent and as broad as daylight itself.

Although the budgets have been left literally uncut, state appropriations to Winthrop have remained at the same figure for a couple of years despite cost increases which constantly occur around us. Between 1973 and 1974, for instance, the utilities bill for the college was $350,000. In sharp contrast, Winthrop appropriated the staggering sum of $750,000 for this year's utilities. The problem with utilities resulted from a forced change from gas to fuel oil. Fuel oil, as learned this winter, runs much higher than gas. To cope with the dilemma, air conditioning (and heat, eventually) is cut off at 5 p.m. in most of the buildings on campus. And so reads the understatement of the year: "We must conserve as much energy as possible or suffer the consequences." (Perhaps another budget cut.)

The high price of utilities is not our only financial problem. The state legislature is no longer responsible for the payment of fringe benefits, some of which include social security taxes, unemployment, and retirement fees. Consequently, Winthrop carries this burden which presently amounts to about $200,000. Next year, this load will increase by another $100,000.

For all intents and purposes, few of us have escaped from the burden caused by the lack of government appropriations to the college. Winthrop students, however, are left at the greatest disadvantage since they must pay from their own pockets. Tuition has skyrocketed. Full-time students must pay $407 (in-state) or $757.50 (out-of-state) per semester as opposed to last year's tuition of $345 and $675, respectively. Part-time students should be distressed over the fact that tuition has risen $5.00 (in-state) or $8.00 (out-of-state) per hour since last year.

Equally disturbing, student services have been cut to a bare minimum. Our post office, for example, once had 8 hours a day, 5 days a week, window service. Presently, however, we must schedule ourselves (or our friends when we can't beat the schedule) to 3 hours per day window service. Furthermore there are only 3 full-time employees and some student assistants who handle the overload of incoming/outgoing mail and packages. The post office budget provides almost entirely for their salaries alone and it simply does not allow for the hiring of any more employees. The post office in fact could not afford the new stamp machine near the information desk at Dinkins. The money for this machine was taken from the book store budget.

Clearly, the post office is more than burdened with its share of cutbacks. But students must pay the price in the long run. Let us hope that this is not necessarily the case especially when student rights to services such as the post office and reasonable tuition fees are concerned. THE JOHNSONIAN wants to know if you are satisfied/dissatisfied or simply wish to see some alterations. When you express your rights people listen; when you don't they don't.

More Big Words From A Big Mouth

Jim Good

I am back. I am back. Let me shout it to the world; I am back! And who the hell cares? Listen, a lot of you folks out there don't even know that I was ever once here. And where, after all, is here? Here is nestled between the sweetly caressing folds of this pointedly pernicious purveyor of putrefaction. I am rapidly setting out to redrill a little hole in the center of my newspaper apple; a little column-inch worm.

Since last I was here several years ago I have trod the leathern foot upon the cobbled path of glory, but have managed only to come upon hard times, cold sandwiches and skin mags. The editor of this previously particularly punctilious publication, seeing me there face-down in the gutter was kind enough to grasp a fistful of oily locks (now newly shorn) and pull me back up to semi-respectability. For this I can only say "Bless you."

Now the long road to rehabilitation and dementia precox for which you will all be a part; (of course, you might not read this stuff in which case you won't know that because you didn't read this either. Like they say, ex nihilo nihilo fit or, "if the nihilo fits wear it.")

For all of your freshmen and transfers what can I say? I welcome you to the hallowed halls (and hollowed heads) of Winthrop College. How much good there is here! Oh my, my, my, deary, mercy me. I could go on and on... but I won't. You'll find out for yourselves (won't you, my pretties? Heh, heh, heh.) And to the omniscient oligarchs of ontological onanism ("I think I think I am, therefore I must be. At least I'm pretty sure.") who, like the proverbial loose doorknob are always coming off in their hands, I say "how are things at the top?" and also, "have you found out the top is really only somewhere in the lower middle yet?"

And for all you groovy guys and chicks, all you trash with flash, all you teen queens and love pistols, all you narcotized neophytes of courtly campus au courant we'll have record reviews, movie reviews, concert reviews, the rate-a-date service, fashion forecast (color coordinated condoms for the chic Casanova) and much, much more! We'll out-Gurley Helen Brown, and put the gooch to Guccione. We'll be neat and petite and oh so sweet with no superfluous bodily hair nor a zit to spare. We'll be Winthrop Collegians '77!

This is just my introductory bit;

just a little something to let you know where I'm coming from (sixteen different directions at once). Now that I've made everything perfectly clear you should be free to establish your territory here on the semi-lush campus of Normal and Industrial. I look forward to seeing you all out at the Barn (in your Jantzen tartan-plaid double knits and your two-piece pant suits) and The Money (body chains, jasmine musk oil, sixteen inch platforms, saten blouses, and purple lipstick... and what do the girls wear?) For myself, I shall be elsewhere, (o.d.ing on Cepacol and watching reruns of yesterday's test pattern.)

I should mention before closing that any and all suggestions concerning this column (such as where to cram it) should be addressed to: Box 555, Old Nordquist Rd., Baumfukk, Sweden, 30769. All comments become property of this paper and absolutely no acknowledgement of any kind (including and especially money) will be given.

So, for this time until next time goodbye, ory vore, a river derky, shalom, sim salabim, hasta lavista, guten tag, and farewell. Who loves ya, baby? (To find out address inquiries to box 21, W.C.S. — enclose photo. No cranks, please.)

Just For The Record

the kind of thing I'd like my English prof with the dreamy blue eyes to know about. It isn't even the kind of thing I want my mother to know, though she does along with anyone else who comes to family reunions.

Naturally when I heard of a thing called Buckley Amendment I shot bottle rockets out my bathroom window and played The Star Spangled Banner to the entire neighborhood for an hour. My boyfriend hauled out his abnormal psychology text then and tried to prove to me that I had all five varieties of schizophrenia. But I had no time for compliments, I was busy preparing for the section which in effect stated: One must have a good reason in order to be granted permission to see one's record. I arranged my arguments as follows: 1) because I must, 2) because I cannot wait to see it one moment longer, 3) because the suspense is maddening and 4) because I must know if a serious bathroom incident occurring in my sixth year of school has been recorded. I was certain—the last argument could not fail. I was positive. It did.

Needless to say to this very day I have neither found nor seen a thing called a record. I still hear what I should do for it and what would look good on it or in it or around it but I try not to listen. I can't spend my time decorating some invisible albatross. The next time I hear someone say "It'll look good on your record," I'm likely to weld their bathroom door shut.

Interest In Professionalism

How important is the Student ASPA Movement? It is the lifeblood of ASPA. ASPA is concerned with increasing professionalism in the personnel field the importance of student members becomes even more apparent.

With the increasing complexity of the personnel field, future personnel managers will be required to be more qualified and competent. The Student ASPA movement gives students exposure to professionals now active in personnel, problems facing personnel professionals and projects which test their approaches to the field.

The future of personnel rests upon student involvement for future professional personnel administrators. It is my hope that if you are considering involvement in ASPA, your enthusiasm and contributions will add to the vitality of the Winthrop Student Chapter.

On September 15, the Winthrop Chapter of ASPA will meet at the Rock Hill Country Club for a dinner with our parent Chapter. The guest speaker will be the National President of ASPA. The cost of the dinner will be $5.00 and it is open to all prospective members. For further information please call 323-3964.

Phineas And The One Pitcher Drunk

Ron Layne

Our Subject: Phineas Phroso and The One Pitcher Drunk — A Current American Phenomenon.

This is a "Pitcher Study". Had we used bottled beer, it would have been a "Case Study", but draft beer doesn't come in cases — anyway — you get the point.

Just-turned-eighteen and the first week of classes in his first of college — Phineas is the very essence of "cool". He is also (or so he's been told) at his sexual peak. Were it not for an advanced case of zits-he could be called handsome. Were it not for the fact that he is scared shitless of women — he could be called a ladies man. Were it not for the fact that he is wasting his sexual potency on wet dreams — he could be called virile. Were it not for the fact that he scored high on his SAT test — he could be called an idiot.

The Location: The College Bar — a dimly lit "Draft Den" where pleasure is yours for the begging — where, night after night all the world's problems are solved by the world's most gifted alcoholics.

Enter-Phineas. His dress — casual. The shirt-open at the collar (exposing an embarrassingly pointed adam's apple and a chest where looking for a hair is like looking for a shade tree in the Sahara Desert...the front of the shirt instantly identifies him as the proud owner of a Harley Davidson (though in real life it is a Schwinn 10 speed.) The Shoes-sandals-beautifully accented with plaid socks.

The Pants-Levi's and very VERY loose fitting (his reason being that his macho image will have women reaching down his pants for hidden pleasures and he is making sure NOTHING gets in their way. Inside the pants-nothing does.)

Phineas is about to go through his rites of manhood. He is ready to leap the abyss that separates boy from man. He is going to get DRUNK!

Oh, he doesn't know that. He's been practicing on ginger ale all week and through some cleverly stupid sense of reasoning, he figures he is ready for the real stuff.

"A pitcher of Budweiser, please." He says in his deepest soprano voice as the bartender stifles a chuckle.

Silently, ceremoniously, Phineas carries the pitcher of amber adulthood to the closest table, the weight of which is taxing his strength, and proceeds to pour his first glass-of FOAM. (By now a crowd has gathered at a discreet distance to watch the one they have christened - THE KID).

The second glass goes better — nearly a full glass with no foam and Phineas is aware of the gallery of onlookers. In a bold attempt to impress them, he raises the glass- and downs it. It quite nearly manages to down him. His attempts to stifle his choking sounds fill his lungs with beer.

Undaunted — he pours another glass. The Quaff. And the second glass hits his stomach as the first cuts the power to his sense of reason.

The crowd applauds and Phineas bows, partially a gesture of thanks but, mostly to let the tears drain from his eyes.

Glass Three-Full-Then Empty as Phineas stuns the crowd with his disappearing trick-and numbs his own legs through powers that he really doesn't understand.

A fourth sends the now favorable crowd into a frenzy and Phineas begins to wish the coach would send him to the showers.

A fifth — and hands begin to slap his back nearly giving them all a second look at the beer he just forced down. Phineas slips down into the chair until his eyes — level with the table now-come face to face with his most dreaded adversary. THE LAST GLASS OF BEER.

Phineas groans. "No More".

The crowd chants. "One More".

Phineas pleads. "No more".

The crowd screams. "One More!"

Phineas nods. "One More".

The crowd roars!

Someone has poured the last glass, his own arms good for just one more grip and quaff.

Phineas sights down his nose for his beatings on the glass and s-l-o-w-l-y brings it up to his lips.

"Go!" The crowd yells their encouragement as Phineas tonsils try to reject the first swallow.

"Go!" The crowd chants as Phineas envisions a medal of honor for his display of heroics.

"Go!" The crowd roars as one of the earlier beers short circuits Phineas' entire Central Nervous System.

The applause is a faint whisper to Phineas' drunkenly deaf ears as he drops the now empty glass in the direction of the table he can no longer see. Hands lift him from the chair and the empty pitcher is placed like a crown on his noble locks and spinning head, as worshippers march him around the room and Phineas is sure he hears a soft, feminine voice head. proclaim him 'her hero' — just as

It's Up To You

By Ron Hough

Well, kiddies, here we all are — at W.C.-learning to propagate the American Way. The business majors are learning how to join the faceless staffs of the mega-corporations, the chemistry majors are learning how to make alkyls, polyurethane, poisonous gases, napalm, etc., the biology majors are learning the basics of gene control, and the Psychology and Sociology majors are (hopefully) learning to save us all from ourselves.

Yes, we're being processed, picking up more numbers every day, and WE'RE PAYING FOR IT! Do you really want to be just like everybody else? You don't have to, you know.

You can resist. You don't have to blindly accept everything thrown your way. Question it—demand to know why. Even if the answer is a bunch of B.S., the questioning process does wonders for your psyche.

You can do your part for change. If you don't like the political system, you can at least vote to change it. Obviously, a lot of people desired the change proposed by Carter, but, sadly, he has been swallowed up by the system. The May Fourth Coalition also failed, but at least they made one hell of an effort. The kids of the sixties also tried to change it all. They went about it in the wrong way, and are all absorbed into the mainstream of America, but they let it be known.

What does all this have to do with W.C.? After all, this is the placid seventies, not the fiery sixties. We're in the Deep South, away from the anxieties of the world, safe and secure in our little liberal arts college. We don't have to worry.

Oh, really? We're part of the world scene. Everything that happens has some bearing on us. When the government decides to increase the national budget, we do the paying. When U.S. Steel increases its prices, we pay. When a company gets away with pouring 65,000 tons of gunk a year into Lake Michigan, it sets precedents for it to happen around here. When the giant industries and automobile manufacturers succeed in delaying emission control standards, we're the ones that can't breathe.

On a lesser scale, the budget cuts here at W.C. affect us. That means less courses, or activities, or student services.

Do we really want to put up with this crap? We could protest it, you know. If we don't make it known, they'll just go on, depriving us of more and more.

Half of you probably haven't made it this far, thinking — "Ohmigawd, another crackpot." — but, if you would seriously think of what's going on for an hour, a day, hell — a week! — and then sit down and seriously ask yourself if you would like to bring a kid up in the world ten to twenty years from now, well, it's up to you.

Burned, Undercooked, or Just Right?

ROCK HILL — The Indian version of Creation doesn't quite jive with the Bible.

Catawba Indian Frances Wade, who describes herself as a shy, quiet person, stood before Winthrop's summer multiethnic heritage class, her "knees knocking like tom-toms," and explained, Indian-style, the way it happened.

"Once there was a great spirit," she began slowly, "whose first creation was a great Indian who patrolled the earth. When the Indian got old, his eyesight dimmed and he was lonely, so he sat down with his pipe and thought about what to do."

"This Indian," continued Mrs. Wade, "decided to make another

Indian from river bottom clay (the same clay used by the Catawbans for their pottery). The first image was molded and fired in a blaze set in the side of a mountain, but came out too dark. The big Indian tossed this one to Africa, where the black race began. The next, not fired long enough, came out too light, and was banished to Europe, beginning the white race.

The third was perfect, with golden brown skin and shiny black hair. This one remained in America as the beginning of the Indian race."

Comparing the origins and development of all cultures in York County is the focus of a current multiethnic heritage project at Winthrop College. Members of the class reflect the region's varied make-up, with Afro-Americans, Southern Appalachian whites, and Catawba Indians among the 15 participants. Many are teachers who plan to take what they learn about York County heritage, and the techniques for obtaining such knowledge, back into their own classrooms. Class instructor is Dr. Joye Pettigrew, a member of the Winthrop English faculty.

Students will interact with a series of guest lecturers like Mrs. Wade. In addition, each student will develop an individual project based on York County heritage, using a wide range of audio-visual supplies and equipment provided by grant funds and Winthrop College.

The Winthrop College multiethnic heritage project is the first organized attempt to involve members of York County cultural groups in discovering their own and each other's heritage. If its success can be judged by the applause given Mrs. Wade following her first lecture in a college classroom, then the project is a rousing success.

Coathanger Project Announced

The Abortion Interest Movement of South Carolina announced a nationwide project sponsored by the National Abortion Rights Action League.

"It is called Project Coathanger," said Anne Bellew, spokesperson for the group. "We would like everyone who is concerned about a woman's right to choose to have an abortion if she needs one to send a coathanger to Rep. Dan Flood, Chairman of the House HEW Sub-Committee, and one of the leading members of the Senate-House Conference Committee on the mammoth Labor/HEW Appropriations Bill. The Conference Committee will be trying to reach a compromise on the differences between the Senate and House versions of the Bill during Labor Day week."

"We are particularly concerned about the Hyde Amendment to the bill," Bellew explained. "The Hyde Amendment is an extremely controversial addition to the bill which would prohibit the use of any government funds to pay for abortions. Rep. Flood has introduced an exception to the prohibition when an abortion is 'necessary to save the life of the woman.'"

In essence, this legislation, even with the Flood's exception would deny poor women access to medically-safe abortions, while women with money would have as much access to them as ever. The Supreme Court recently ruled that states do not have to pay for abortions with Medicaid funds; however, there is at present no legislation forbidding this use of these funds.

"The message of the coathangers is simple," Bellew said. "In the days before abortion was legalized, women used anything they could find to try to abort themselves — from coathangers and knitting needles to Lysol douches. Representative Flood and the other members of the Conference Committee MUST be made to understand that they cannot force us to return to those barbaric and suicidal times."

Please include your return address, if you feel you can," Bellew concluded.

Firefall's Second Helping

FIREFALL-LUNA SEA
Atlantic Records-SD1901.

Almost one year ago, Firefall burst onto the pop music scene, filling the airwaves with such notable efforts as 'You Are The Woman', 'Livin' Ain't Livin', and 'Cinderella'.

How does a group follow up a successful album like the premiere FIREFALL album? Easy. With a second outstanding album.

LUNA SEA brings Rick Roberts, Larry Burnett, Jock Bartley, David Muse, Mark Andes and Michael Clarke back together, and with a line-up like that, the music jels.

Roberts and Burnett have penned nine of the ten offerings on this second album and Roberts is definitely emerging as the group's commercially oriented writer.

The Roberts love songs contained herein seem destined for AM success. 'Someday Soon' is already getting plenty of air play, with no fancy lyrical refrains, just honest emotion backed by solid acoustics.

'So Long', 'Just Remember I Love You' and 'Only A Fool' are the other Roberts standouts on the album and the band delivers them tightly packaged in the FIREFALL style.

FIREFALL seems content to divide their efforts nearly equally between soft, mellow acoustics and electric, Southern California rockers. The group seems to derive satisfaction in their ambiguities.

The title of the album and 'Even Steven' are evidence of that fact. The Larry Burnett offerings on the album are examples par excellence. 'Sold On You', 'Getaway' and 'Head On Home' are very different from the smooth, soft sounds to be found in the Roberts numbers. Burnett boldly punctuates his songs with percussion, electric rifts, and a sometimes hard driving vocal delivery-moving from slow staccato to rapid fire, then back again. Burnett is the other end of the FIREFALL spectrum, offering the listener alternatives of style and sound.

If anyone was looking for a disappointing second helping from FIREFALL, it won't be found in LUNA SEA. Here is FIREFALL, back and better—or at least, just as good...

"English has moved to... History 101 is now being handled through... Check with Ms.... This course may be closed but in room 212 on the other side of campus....!!!!!!?"

Canadian Mist

NEIL YOUNG-AMERICAN STARS 'N BARS-Warner Bros.

Like a tall glass of Canadian Mist-mellow, but with the potential for packing a wallop-Neil Young is back in AMERICAN STARS 'N BARS.

If the album cover is a ten day drunk of depressive symbolism, the album rises above and beyond his most recent previous releases. AMERICAN STARS 'N BARS is not entrenched in the manic depressive vein of previous efforts, instead, the album may well represent a vein of gold.

Standout cut on the album is 'Like A Hurricane', displaying a polished electric work that evokes praise for Young's finger work.

This song represents eight minutes (reduced to just over five minutes on the single release) of pleasing guitar work and a stronger vocal effort than Young has given us in many an album.

'Will To Love' is a haunting, enchanter-an almost spoken soliloquy that is accented by special percussion touches.

For years, Young has been displaying his interest in CW music, and AS&BARS is further evidence of his intention to keep working that musical avenue. Cuts like 'The Old Country Waltz' and 'Hold Back The Tears' ride the razor fine edge between R&R and CW.

Take special note of the lyrics. 'Bite The Bullet', a jump on it cut that makes reference to Charlotte. Again, Young finds new strength in his vocals.

So-another Neil Young album. Just part of the endless enigma that leads the listener one step closer, yet miles away from discovering just where Neil Young is really at. Maybe Young told us that a long time ago-after all...everybody knows this is nowhere...

By Dave Burrage

Ask the most avid college basketball fan who the nation's best college coaches are and you'll get answers like, "Smith of Carolina, Crum of Louisville, Phelps of Notre Dame, and Gordon of Newberry — er Winthrop." WINTHROP! That's right! Nield Philip Gordon, Athletic Director and Basketball Coach at Winthrop College has more coaching honors than Ruth has salads! Gordon was NAIA National "Coach of the Year" in 1977 (leading Newberry College to a 36-1 record and a No. 1 ranking in the nation among all NAIA Colleges). Other honors include South Carolina "Coach of the Year" in 1976 and 1977, and NAIA District Six "Coach of the Year" in 1969, 1976, and 1977! So, you can see why WC was pleased with hiring Gordon as A.D. and Basketball Coach. Winthrop, with a men's team scheduled to begin NAIA play in late 1978, wanted the best coach possible . . . and got him.

This writer had the opportunity to meet and talk with Coach Gordon recently, and was surprised to hear that two other men's sports — baseball and track — are good possibilities for the near future. When asked about men's sports at WC, Coach Gordon replied, "I really hope that in the very near future that we can add to the men's program, baseball and track." Gordon said that perhaps a cross country team could precede a track team (until a sports complex is built), and regarding baseball, he said, "Baseball — I can see it being right up the road in the very near future."

Although Coach Gordon is A.D. and is interested in all WC sports, basketball is his specialty. Five of Gordon's players at Newberry have transferred, including a pair of 6'10" twins, Donnie and Ronnie Creamer. WC will begin its season in late 1978 and probable sites for home games are RH and Northwestern High School gyms, as well as York Comprehensive High Gym.

WC's schedule will be basically the same that Newberry had in NAIA District Six (several schools have agreed to play WC, but a definite schedule is not yet available).

One advantage of having the season start in 1978, rather than 1977, is that WC can organize a squad of cheerleaders. Imagine having a basketball team take the floor against an opponent and not having anyone to cheer them on! Seriously, according to Coach Gordon, "We'll get three or four girls from each class and have a squad of cheerleaders to send to camp this summer, and get them ready for next year. Also, I would like to have a pep band organized and perhaps a dancing group to perform at halftime."

In the meantime, Coach Gordon will be supervising the intercollegiate sports program, along with Dr. Mary Roland Griffin (associate Athletic Director). Dr. Griffin will continue to handle the women's sports department.

A Talk With The Coach

Women's Volleyball

The 1977 WC Women's volleyball team will open its season Sept. 28 in home matches with Clemson and USC-Spartanburg, according to the schedule released today by Coach Linda Warren.

The Eagles will play 25 AIAW matches, including 11 home encounters. WC will also participate in tournaments at UNC-Greensboro, Francis Marion and Appalachian.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Sept. 28 — Clemson and USC-Spartanburg, 6:30 p.m.

Sept. 30 — Coastal Carolina, USC, and Erskine at Conway, 6 p.m.

Oct. 1 — at College of Charleston, 2 p.m.

Oct. 4 — Lander, Coker, and Erskine, 6:30 p.m.

Oct. 7-8 — at UNC-Greensboro Inv. Tourney, 9 a.m.

Oct. 12 — Presbyterian, 7 p.m.

Oct. 14-15 — at Francis Marion Tourney, 9 a.m.

Oct. 18 — Wake Forest and Furman, 6:30 p.m.

Oct. 20 — Elon and UNC-Chapel Hill at Elon, 6 p.m.

Oct. 24 — Converse and Clemson at Spatbg., 6 p.m.

Oct. 26 — Francis Marion, 6:30 p.m.

Oct. 28-29 — at Appalachian

Tourney, 9 a.m.

Nov. 1 — Appalachian and Col. of Charleston, 6:30 p.m.

Nov. 3 — Presbyterian, USC-S, Limestone, & Erskine at Clinton, 6 p.m.

Nov. 7 — Coker and Benedict at Hartsville, 6 p.m.

All home matches will be played in peabody gym.

Do you find yourself drinking, smoking or eating in excess?

Do you have trouble meeting people or initiating casual conversation?

No this isn't an ad for Excedrin, Alka Seltzer or Scope... but it is an opportunity to help yourself and others like you who are suffering from any of these problems.

The Counseling Center is offering three workshops this fall designed to meet the needs of persons who face anxiety feelings, bad habits or lack of social skills.

The BREAKING HABITS workshop will enable participants to concentrate on increasing positive habits or decreasing negative habits.

These workshop groups will meet over a four to six week period, in 1-1½ hour sessions per week. Meetings will begin when at least seven members have been signed up for a workshop.

Does one of these workshops sound like just what you need?

Drop by the Counseling Center on the second floor of Bancroft today and sign up for one or more of these groups. You may be a better person for it.

Jenkins Testifies Before Senate

The United States Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped recently heard testimony regarding professional opinion in concept and implementation of Public Law 94-142, "Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975."

Dr. Offa Lou Jenkins, chairperson of Winthrop College's Dept. of Special Education, was invited to testify before the subcommittee headed by sen. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia.

Dr. Jenkins stated without reservation that her reason in testifying was embedded in her belief in "helping people learn how to learn, which is what Public Law 94-142 is all about."

The law calls for a free and appropriate public education be made available for all handicapped children between the ages of 3 and 18 not later than Sept. 1, 1978.

The Winthrop educator told the senators she supported the law because she believed in children. "I believe in little ones, big ones, chubby ones, thin ones, fat ones and slow ones," she said. "There is faith in their eyes, love in their touch, and hope in their attitude. I thrill with children at life's joys, and I run with them through tall grasses, and I bow with them in worship, and I hold them close in tragedy," she continued.

One of the areas covered by the law is that of providing "appropriately trained personnel to educate the handicapped." Dr. Jenkins told the subcommittee this is important, because "children will learn and learn how to learn in direct ratio with their instructor's level of performance."

Dr. Jenkins told of a 36-year-old man who was born a triple amputee, the son of an eastern Kentucky coal miner. At the age of six, his brothers and sisters placed him in a wagon and pulled him down the road to school. The first grade teacher looked at him and remarked, "Do they expect me to teach a freak?"

Twenty-five years later when asked what could be done to help him, he replied, "Teach me to read and do numbers."

Dr. Jenkins also described a girl with a cerebral palsied condition. Her youth was spent in hospitals. With homebound instruction, she completed high school requirements.

"I first met her as a 34-year-old who looked 17," said Dr. Jenkins. "She had been sitting home for 13 years because the local college would not permit her to attend since she could not manipulate the stairs."

This girl is now a college graduate and is beginning to "come into her own as a writer."

For those who want an "easy remedy" to this "tragic situation," Dr. Jenkins said there is none. "No one said the implementation was going to be easy. All we ask," she said, "is the strength to do, the manpower we need and appropriate funding."

Minimum membership dues have been set at $25 per year. During the first year of operation, special charter memberships are $100. These charter members will receive a framed certificate and will have their name inscribed on a plaque in the proposed athletic center.

Other levels of giving are planned, but details have not been decided. The first year goal is $30,000, and all contributions are tax deductible.

The Eagle Club will operate under the auspices of an 18-member board of directors. Johnny Gill, a Rock Hill insurance man, has been named temporary chairman of the club, and Bill Neely, a Rock Hill banker, as secretary-treasurer.

Other members of the board of directors are: Larry Hasenjaeger, Ted Solomon, Marshall Walker, Coleman Poag, Ed Haws, Merritt Wilkerson, Ann Sumwalt Hollowell, Jim Pendergrass, Elaine Mozingo, Robert Hope, Peter Perrill, Bob Carter, Bill Oliver, John Austin and Hugh Rock.

The college fields teams in seven sports for women — basketball, field hockey, volleyball, gymnastics, golf, tennis and softball — and three sports for men — soccer, golf and tennis.

Gordon has already begun recruiting players for men's basketball which will be added in 1978.

Anyone may join the Eagle Club by sending a check for $25 or more (general membership) or $100 or more (special charter membership) to Bill Neely, in care of S.C. National Bank, P.O. Box 3208 CRS, Rock Hill, S.C. 29730.

Employment Increase

From all indications, today's college graduates aren't having as hard a time finding good jobs as in recent years.

Northwestern University's Endicott Survey in June reported that the nation's largest employers are hiring more bachelor and master degree graduates than a year ago. Several other studies, including one by the College Placement Council, show about 20 percent more job offers than received by the class of 1976.

While detailed figures won't be available for quite some time, it appears that this year's crop (1977 grads) of W.C. graduates are also fairing well on the job market. The number of recruiters interviewing at Winthrop last year almost doubled that of 1974-75, and many students landed jobs as a result of those interviews.

Charles Blackmon, manager of the S.C. State Employment Service office in York County, says the job market is more favorable for college graduates, especially in the lower and mid-management positions.

The latest figures for the state reveal that about 5 percent of the work force is unemployed. Blackmon doesn't know how many of those are college graduates, but he says "employment opportunities are definitely better than last year."

WHAT TO DO — NOT TO DO

Employers are looking for students who can talk intelligently about themselves, their goals, aspirations, and skills. Grades and extra-curricular activities are also important. Students must know what they want. They must be aggressive and willing to take the time to choose who they want to work for. A good way to find a job is to knock on doors, since many job openings aren't advertised. Students must often be willing to re-locate.

WHERE TO GO

Students are asking more questions about careers because recent economic conditions have caused them to be concerned about job opportunities.

To aid students in planning job campaigns, W.C. has set up seminars in career search, graduate study, placement procedures, resume writing, and interviewing techniques.

The Placement and Career Planning Office tries to stress the importance of early career counseling. Early decisions (such as those made during freshman and sophomore years) can have considerable effect on the chances of getting a good job.

Violin Program Offered For Children

The Suzuki violin program, begun at Winthrop College in the fall of 1976, will be offered again this fall semester.

Introduced in America by Shinichi Suzuki, this method of teaching combines class and individualized instruction. It has won nationwide acclaim as an approach to teaching small children to play the violin.

The class, limited to first and second graders, will be taught by Marjorie Sibley, newly appointed lecturer in music at Winthrop and a member of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra.

Each student in the class will receive one 50-minute class lesson and one 30-minute private lesson per week. One unique aspect of the Suzuki method is that a parent accompanies the student to all lessons and learns with the child. The parent reinforces the lessons by practicing with the child during the week.

The semester fee for the class is $130 which includes use and maintenance of the half-size violin.

Parents interested in enrolling children in the Suzuki class should Business managers are not using college graduates highly trained in secretarial science skills as they once did.

A recent study conducted by Earnest R. Archer, professor of business administration at Winthrop College, and Roberta Dunlap White, instructor of secretarial sciences at Wingate College, shows that less than 10 percent of the secretary's day is spent taking dictation or transcribing. Nearly half of those surveyed don't take any dictation at all.

The survey included secretaries who graduated from college within the past five years with shorthand skills between 120 and 140 words per minute.

The results of the study will appear in the October issue of the "Business Education Forum," a magazine published by the National Business Education Association.

Those results showed what Dr. Archer described to be the "vanishing art of dictation." More than 60 percent of those interviewed had never transcribed from mechanical devices. Seventy-five to eighty percent spent less than one tenth of their working day taking dictation.

Dr. Archer cited two basic reasons for the manager's failure to use their secretaries' skills to their fullest.

"There is a lack of confidence on the part of managers to dictate to secretaries as they once did," he said. "Secretaries are trained to take dictation, but managers are not trained to give it. Schools don't emphasize business communication skills as they once did either," he explained.

Another reason Dr. Archer gives for secretaries not using the skills is in the "diminishing art of articulate and concise communication," he says.

contact Don Rogers, director of the Academy of Music, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C. 29733; telephone 323-2255.

There will be an organizational meeting for the class on Friday, Sept. 9, at 3 p.m. in room 101 of the Conservatory of Music.

Secretaries Not Used To Their Full Potential

"The art of communication is being lost," he notes. "Written succinct communication isn't being taught even at the elementary level, and so carries over into the secondary and higher levels of student's education."

The inability to communicate concisely and the lack of training for managers have caused business "a lot of wasted talent and money," said Dr. Archer. "With the average cost of a business letter estimated at $4.50, you'd think business management would want to make use of every economical means that is available to cut those costs."

The survey shows this is not the case. "It has all kinds of ramifications," he said.

"If secretaries aren't using transcribing or shorthand skills, then there is either no need to train them, or we need to reevaluate the training of business administrators," he concluded.

Memorial Prize For The Best Short Fiction

An annual prize fund for the best short fiction produced by a Winthrop College student is being established in honor of Dr. Robert P. Lane, long-time chairman of the college's Dept. of English and Drama.

Dr. Lane, a native of Newark, N.J., died April 7 after serving as a member of the Winthrop faculty since 1962. He headed the English department until 1975.

Friends of Dr. Lane are setting up a memorial prize fund. "We wish to honor his memory with an award that will encourage the creativity which he so long championed," said Dr. Earl J. Wilcox, present chairman of the Winthrop Dept. of English and Drama, who is heading the fund-raising drive.

Dr. Wilcox said Dr. Lane was a "faithful friend of the arts, an avid theatre goer and an enthusiastic reader of fiction."

The prize will be awarded each spring during Winthrop's honors and awards banquet. The entries will be judged by a well-known off campus critic, and the winner will be printed in the spring issue of the campus literary magazine, The Anthology.

"We believe this is the sort of award which Bob Lane would feel suitable to his own quiet dignity, generosity and sincerity," said Dr. Wilcox.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the "Robert P. Lane Prize Fund" may do so by sending a check to the Winthrop College Foundation, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C. 29733. All donations are tax deductible.

"Pianist Craft"

Dr. Eugene Barban, professor of music at Winthrop College, will conduct a lecture-recital series for pianists during the 1977-78 academic year.

The six sessions, titled "The Pianist's Craft," are designed to encompass important areas of piano literature and their value in both performing and teaching.

The first lecture is scheduled Monday, Sept. 12, at 8 p.m. in Recital Hall and is titled "Creative Practicing."

Other programs scheduled are: Oct. 3 — Cimarosa's Keyboard Sonatas: An Introduction to the Classical Style; Nov. 7 — Liszt: Music for Intermediate Pianists; Dec. 1 — Poulenc; Improvisations and Other Piano Works; Jan. 16 — Mendelssohn's Songs Without Words; and Feb. 13 — In Answer to Your Question: An Evening of Topics Selected By the Audience.

All programs are open to the public without charge.

Dr. Barban has been at Winthrop since 1970. He is a native of Columbus, Ohio. He holds a B.M. degree from Capital University, a M.F.A. from Ohio University and a D.M.A. from Cincinnati University.

He has appeared in concert at the National Gallery of Art and at the Phillips Collection, both in Washington, D.C., and at the Carnegie Recital Hall in New York. He has appeared as soloist and chamber musician throughout the United States, and in 1974 he performed recitals in Holland and Austria.

Prof Moonlights

(CPS)—A lecturer in chemistry at UCLA is sashaying into a more physical arena.

Richard Davis has received $2,000 to pose for the centerfold of this September's Playgirl Magazine.

"I tried to consider all the ramifications in light of my future plans, and I have no definitive reasons not to. After all, I'm living off it (the money) for three months," the 32-year-old chemist told the UCLA Daily Bruin.

"It's like teaching," he continued "You want to communicate enthusiasm and concern to the students. Part of the enjoyment is the feedback."

Davis says he discussed the centerfold with his department chairman and it was agreed that it would not affect the lecturer's teaching powers. Playgirl has agreed, nonetheless, not to mention UCLA in the spread.

Don't Let Smoke Burn Your Eyes

President Carter's announcement that he backs a relaxation of current federal laws mandating stiff penalties for marijuana users appears to have brought the U.S. law regarding the drug closer to that of South Carolina's.

Current federal laws call for a $5,000 fine or a year in prison, or both, for marijuana possession. Carter supports reducing the penalty to a $100 fine.

First offense possession of marijuana in South Carolina, in amounts up to one ounce, is punishable by three months in jail or a $100 fine, or both for a first offense. The penalties are tougher for larger amounts and for repeat offenders.

Persons with no prior record of drug possession who plead guilty to, or who are found guilty of possession, may be conditionally discharged by the court on probation with at least one condition being that they cooperate in a treatment and rehabilitation program approved by the Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse or a state-supported facility.

Non-public records of the offense are forwarded to SLED (State Law Enforcement) for use by the courts in determining whether a person has committed a subsequent offense under the law. Discharge and dismissal under the law can occur only once.

Upon dismissal of the charges, persons not over 25 years old at the time of the arrest may apply to the court for an order to expunge all official records relating to the arrest, including indictment or information, trial, finding of guilt and dismissal and discharge of the offense.

The effect of the expungement, according to the law, "shall be to restore such person, in the contemplation of the law, to the status he occupied before such arrest or indictment or information."

For further information write the American Civil Liberties Union of South Carolina, 2016 Green Street, Columbia, S.C.
